Who is OADD?

The Ontario Association on Developmental Disabilities is a non-profit that supports people working and studying in the field of developmental disabilities by providing educational resources and networking opportunities. This is accomplished by publishing a peer-reviewed academic journal, the Journal on Developmental Disabilities, and hosting two annual conference events within the province of Ontario to bring together people in the field to share experiences and learning. The OADD has been around for over 35 years and maintains a neutral stance (no government funding) in order to bring together as many ideas and people as possible.

About our Fall Conference

The OADD will be hosting its 4th Annual Fall Conference in Kingston at the Kingston Marriott, November 12th and 13th, 2025. The title of the event is “Prioritizing & Planning for Person Centered Collaboration Models”.

We anticipate up to 200 participants in person and an additional 75 - 100 virtually. Attendees are primarily mid- to senior level management in non-profit agency from around the province who truly understand the value of working and learning together.

Unlike our Annual Spring conference this event will be hybrid, single themed and include 1 ½ full days of consecutive presentations followed by Topic One of our new Professional Development Lecture Series “Shaping Tomorrow’s Supervisors”

Presentations will highlight collaborative models that can address the needs of people supported now and as things change; innovative programs that combine a range of agencies/skilled personnel, and understanding of complex issues and technologies and provide data-driven outcomes measurements.

Who attends?

The Fall OADD conference draws approximately 200 in person and 75 virtual participants from across Ontario including.

- Executive Directors
- Senior Management
- Direct Support Professionals
- Health Care Professionals
- Representatives from MCCSS & MOHLTC
